Senate Leaders Release Substitute Budget Bill

Senate President Larry Obhof (R-Medina), Senate Finance Chair Sen. Scott Oelslager (R-North Canton) and other members of the Republican Caucus released the preliminary details of the Senate version of the FY18-19 budget bill, HB49 (R. Smith), at a news conference this morning, June 12, at 11 a.m. A Dispatch article below provides an initial, big picture overview of what will appear in the bill when adopted later today. The Senate Finance Committee will then at 2:30 p.m. today in the Senate Finance Hearing Room to accept the substitute bill. More details will be available at that time.

The committee will hear public testimony on the substitute bill on Tuesday through Thursday, June 13 through June 15. The vote on the bill by the full Senate continues to be expected Wednesday, June 21 after which the bill will go to a conference committee of the House and Senate to work out the differences. The budget itself must be finalized by Friday, June 30 in advance of the July 1 start to FY18.

The full committee's hearings for public testimony on the substitute bill are as follows:

- Tuesday, June 13 - 11 a.m.
- Wednesday, June 14 - 10:30 a.m.
- Thursday, June 15 - 1 p.m. (or after session)

Witnesses are asked to submit their testimony and completed witness slips 24 hours in advance of the hearing. Oelslager's office said they will "try to accommodate morning/afternoon time requests" but they note, "we anticipate a great deal of public testimony and requests will be granted on a first-come, first-serve basis." Oral testimony will be limited to three minutes. The witness slip is available by emailing Erica.vincent@ohiosenate.gov.

Dispatch Article on the Budget

By Jim Siegel
The Columbus Dispatch

Posted at 11:01 AM Updated at 11:01 AM

Medicaid and other state agencies would see deeper funding cuts, but fewer schools would see reductions and a little more money would be directed at Ohio's opioid crisis under Senate Republican budget changes unveiled today.

Anticipating a larger revenue shortfall when new estimates are released in two weeks, Senate leaders say the revised budget is crafted to close a projected $1 billion revenue shortfall — $200 million more than the hole Gov. John Kasich's budget office suggested in April that lawmakers should try to close.

"We expect the current gap to increase, and the Senate has budgeted accordingly," said Senate President Larry Obhof, R-Medina. "I believe this bill reflects the right balance between funding our state's priorities and doing more with less."

The House-passed budget called for spending $170.6 million more on the drug epidemic, including $130 million for addiction treatment as well as additional support for child-protection services and for grandparents and other family members caring for children whose parents cannot.

Senate Republicans said they were able to increase that to $176.4 million, though that includes reworking some of what the House proposed and transferring much of the House-allocated funding out of the general revenue fund, allowing it to likely be paid for with federal grants or state fees.

The Senate is proposing $60 million for child protective services and programs to support children in drug-affected families, maintaining $20 million for the expansion of treatment housing, $6 million in new detox facilities, $5 million to help counties establish drug abuse response teams and $5 million to train teachers in identifying addicted students. It also provides funds to upgrade Ohio's prescription-drug tracking system and provides a way for county jails to be reimbursed for mental health drugs.

In education, the Senate plan reportedly means no state funding cuts for 535 of Ohio's 610 school districts, a drop from the roughly 350 districts that were cut under the House-passed budget. And instead of the House-passed 5.5 percent cap on funding increases — a cap that impacts a number of Franklin County districts — the Senate cap would range from 3 to 6 percent, depending on student growth.

Districts destined for funding reductions under the Senate budget are those that have lost at least 5 percent of their student population in the last two years. The Senate also is proposing to reduce student testing by eliminating the requirement for state fourth- and sixth-grade social studies tests.

As for higher education, the Senate eliminated a House-passed proposal that would have allowed universities to impose unlimited tuition increases so long as they guaranteed that tuition rate for four years. The Senate also proposed increased funding for the Ohio College Opportunity Grant, a needs-based financial aid program.

On taxes, the Senate budget would increase the tax deduction families can take for the state's college savings program, or the state's ABLE program, which allows savings for children with disabilities.

Senate leaders said they also restored funding cuts to food banks, breast and cervical cancer screening programs, and clean water and safety initiatives.

Overall, however, many state agencies would see cuts of 3 to 4 percent. In addition, the Senate wants to cut $200 million from Medicaid, though specifics are still forthcoming, and $20 million from the state prison system.

Senate leaders said they also eliminated tens of millions in earmarks and took about $85 million from programs with unspent funds.

The revised budget bill will be formally introduced this afternoon. The Senate will continue budget hearings this week, before approving additional amendments next week along with a full chamber vote.

From there, the House and Senate will work out their differences in a joint conference committee, with the hope of passing the budget by June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

ADDICTION/SUBSTANCE ABUSE

Ohio Third Frontier, which recently awarded $20 million to fund the Ohio Opioid Abuse, Prevention and Treatment Technology Initiative, is now accepting proposals to address the opioid addiction epidemic through technology. Regarding pharmaceuticals, projects that could qualify for a fast-track designation from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) are preferred by the state. Regarding health technologies, the agency noted projects to develop databases or predictive analytics used to inform public policy decisions on the opioid epidemic are not eligible. The agency also issued an RFP seeking a program manager for the Ohio Opioid Technology Challenge program.

AGRICULTURE

The Ohio Department of Taxation issued its Current Agricultural Use Values (CAUV) for the 2017 tax year at a public hearing Friday amid steady concerns from farmers and agriculture stakeholders about sky-rocketing property tax rates.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

At a meeting of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee, Attorney General Mike DeWine Thursday laid out his perspective on the many effects of the ongoing opioid abuse epidemic in Ohio. The committee, chaired by U.S. Rep. Pat Tiberi (R-Columbus), invited DeWine to be part of the panel on the economic impact of the opioid epidemic and to share his perspective as the head of state law enforcement and a former legislator.

FY16-17 BUDGET

The Office of Budget and Management (OBM) Tuesday released its preliminary figures for May, reporting that revenues continued to come in under estimates. Revenues fell $67.0 million short for the month although officials said they continue to expect the state to finish the year in the black. This brings the year's shortfall to nearly $840.8 million with one month left in FY17.

FY18-19 BUDGET

The Senate Finance Committee heard from over 100 witnesses this week on the proposed FY18-19 budget, prior to the Senate's releasing its version of the budget on Monday, June 12. As the budget process moves along, Senate President Larry Obhof (R-Medina) and House Speaker Cliff Rosenberger (R-Clarksville) addressed the concerns of Ohio business owners at a gathering of the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) Ohio chapter on Wednesday. With regard to the Senate's budget deliberations, Obhof said that, given the growing size of the budget, almost $68 billion in the current year, the state should be able to make it work given the revenue that it has, saying that it's a spending problem, not a revenue problem. He said the main issue with the budget is that "we haven't done enough."

EDUCATION

More than 1,000 ACT tests initially declared void by the testing provider will be scored after all, ACT and the Ohio Department of Education (ODE) said Friday. The move comes a day after Superintendent Paolo DeMaria told the State Board of Education he was urging ACT to score the tests and had filed a formal complaint with the state procurement office over the testing contract. A report from the Buckeye Institute reviews the use of education savings accounts (ESAs) around the U.S. and urges Ohio policymakers to institute their use here. The accounts can hold state funding that families then use for educational expenses like private school tuition, tutoring, textbooks or saving for college.

The Ohio Department of Education (ODE) is currently accepting applications for participants in the July 2017 Alignment Study process. The purpose of each alignment study is to verify the alignment of the assessment items to the Ohio Learning Standards for content and difficulty. Alignment studies are part of the peer review process that provide additional evidence for the validity of the state assessments to the U.S. Department of Education (USDOE), ODE explained. Applications are due Friday, June 16.

Consistent, year-to-year use of open enrollment is associated with modestly higher student performance, according to a research report commissioned by the Fordham Institute and released Tuesday.

Draft recommendations of a study panel to be submitted to State Superintendent Paolo DeMaria call for the state to substantially pare back its student assessment requirements, eliminating tests not required by federal law.

Appellate judges declined Wednesday to block State Board of Education action on the state's enrollment and funding dispute with Electronic Classroom of Tomorrow (ECOT), Ohio's largest online charter school. The 10th District Court of Appeals decision clears the way for the board to take up next week a hearing officer's report that concluded ECOT can't substantiate the enrollment of thousands of students it reported to the state and owes $60 million or more. The report is on the board's voting agenda for its monthly gathering Monday and Tuesday, June 12 and 13.

A large crowd of school employees marched Wednesday to the Statehouse and their pension system's office in protest as lawmakers started hearings on a proposal to cut inflationary increases from their retirement benefits. Some other groups affected by the change are backing the proposal, though their letters of support cite a section of legislative language that's drawn scrutiny from staff of the Ohio Retirement Study Council.

The national unemployment rate fell to 4.3 percent in May, down from 4.4 percent in April, as total nonfarm payroll employment increased by 138,000 jobs over the month, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) said Friday. The national unemployment rate is the lowest it has been since before the recession began.

A jobs report released by finance blog WalletHub ranked Ohio below the middle of the pack regarding the state's job-market strength, but gave higher marks to cities including Cincinnati and Columbus. Ohio was placed at 34th overall for the 50 states, with a "job market" ranking of 30th and an "economic environment" ranking of 37th. The report compared all states across "24 key indicators of job-market strength, opportunity and economic vitality."

ENVIRONMENT

Municipalities and scientists should consider more stringent methods of water quality monitoring following a finding that a virus was involved in Toledo's water crisis, according to a new study. In August 2014, toxins from harmful algal blooms in Lake Erie caused officials to shut down the city of Toledo's water supply, leaving more than 400,000 area residents without potable water for more than two days.

FEDERAL

U.S. Sen. Sherrod Brown (D-OH) said Friday that he believes President Donald Trump's decision to pull the U.S. out of the Paris Climate Agreement will hurt Ohio workers and put the nation in a group that currently includes only Nicaragua and Syria. Brown spoke about the decision with reporters after speaking at an event hosted by Facebook at COSI in Columbus.

A tool allowing online access to tax information for federal student aid purposes is now partially back online after federal officials disabled it earlier this year in reaction to identity theft concerns. The U.S. Department of Education (USDOE) said the data retrieval tool (DRT) is now available for borrowers applying to use one of four income-based repayment plans for federal loans, following the implementation of new encryption protections.

Cedarville University's School of Pharmacy will offer students the option of finishing a doctor of pharmacy degree program in six years instead of seven, the university said.

The Wright State University Board of Trustees approved a FY18 budget plan Thursday that calls for more than $30 million in cuts. The proposed $284 million budget represents about a 15 percent reduction from expected FY17 spending and would result in a $6 million surplus the university wants to help it rebuild reserves, according to a budget briefing presented to trustees.

Owens Community College announced this week the selection of Provost Steve Robinson as interim president. Robinson will take the interim position July 1, following the retirement of President Mike Bower at the end of June. Bower has been president since 2012. HOUSING/HOMELESSNESS

Ohio's "Housing Wage" increased again this year, now reaching $15 an hour. This is the hourly amount renters need to earn to afford rent for a basic, two-bedroom apartment. This is according to a report jointly released Thursday by the National Low Income Housing Coalition and the Coalition on Homelessness and Housing in Ohio (COHHIO). The typical renter in Ohio earns $12.87, which is $2.13 less than the statewide hourly housing wage. OHIO CONSTITUTIONAL MODERNIZATION COMMISSION (OCMC)

In what may be the final meeting of the full Ohio Constitutional Modernization Commission (OCMC), members tabled a recommendation to change the way initiated statutes and constitutional amendments reach the ballot after a number of witnesses testified against the proposal. Two other unrelated recommendations were adopted. While the commission isn't scheduled to end its work until the end of the year, the House-passed version of HB49 (R. Smith) eliminates it at the end of the fiscal year on June 30. While OCMC Co-Chair Sen. Charleta Tavares (D-Columbus) said the budget is still being debated, members of the commission spoke with an expectation that Thursday was the final meeting. The Ohio Constitutional Modernization Commission (OCMC) Constitutional Revision and Updating Committee used its last meeting to mull over its final report and recommendation on the constitutional amendment process to the full OCMC, weighing a significant and last-minute amendment against the possibility of derailing the proposal.

The Ohio Retirement Study Council reaffirmed its support Thursday for granting the School Employees Retirement System (SERS) authority to freeze cost-of-living adjustments and tie future inflationary payments to inflation, and also endorsed various proposed changes to the Highway Patrol Retirement System (HPRS).

TAXATION

A tax break on business income first enacted in 2013 is now costing Ohio about $1 billion a year, Policy Matters Ohio (PMO) recently reported, "far more than previous public estimates." Though the tax break is often referred to as 'the small business deduction,' it is not just available to owners of small businesses. Partners in large law firms, owners of private equity firms, and investors in big companies that are organized as pass-through entities are equally able to qualify. PMO also notes that 9.4 percent of the claimants accounted for 55 percent of the total claimed.

Ohio's business tax climate is one of the worst in the country and ranks far behind its "peers," according to a new book from the right-leaning Buckeye Institute and Tax Foundation. "Ohio Illustrated: A Visual Guide to Taxes and the Economy" says the Buckeye State's "harmful gross receipts tax and complex municipal tax system" led to its ranking of 45th. In this measure, Ohio trails Indiana (ranked 8th), Michigan (12th), Texas (14th), Illinois (23rd) and Pennsylvania (24th).
